Wine growing / wine making

Clay-limestone soils. The vines are trained using the Guyot system. The canopy is large and guarantees the grapes ripen well and develop quality aromatics. Night harvest to preserve the freshness and then straight-to-press in a pneumatic press. A good proportion of the lees is kept, adding balance and aromatic expression. The juice is fermented at low temperatures (16- 18°C) over a short period (7 days). After alcoholic fermentation, the wines are kept in stainless steel tanks on fine lees for 4 to 6 months. Certified organic agriculture.
